4. DIVISIONS

Our divisions are free for all our members to join. They allow members to stay informed of major developments in their field, such as funding and training, and provide a valuable forum for exchanging information and ideas which feed back into our work. Visit rsc.org/divisions for more information.

Why should I join a division?

- Pursue your interest in specific areas of the chemical sciences
- Expand your network of professional contacts
- Access useful information about funding sources, awards and travel grants
- Play an important role in contributing to our activities

Division membership is free of charge. Please indicate below which of these you wish to join:

- Analytical Division
- Chemistry Biology Interface Division
- Dalton Division
- Education Division
- Environment, Sustainability and Energy Division
- Materials Chemistry Division
- Faraday Division
- Organic Division
